OFFICE OF THE R.L.A.

Without knowing in more detail how the unclaimed or undisposed of balances come into existence it is difficult to say ± what Article of the Indian Limitation Act, 1908 applies. It is possible that ddifferent Articles apply to ddifferent deposits and it is obvious that deposits to which the same article applies will not lapse on the same date, so far as the limitation Act is concerned. If therefore the order now in question is to conform to the limitation Act, it is doubtful whether a convenient order a can be made. It is not known whether the Registrar of Firms would regard the order in question as barring any payment to a claimant whose claim is within the period allowed by the Limitation Act. It is also doubtful whether the Accountant General would raise any au-dit objection to a payment of an amount which had been treated by Government as lapsed but a suit for the xnfxx recovery of which was not ba-rred by the Limitation Act or would object to an order of the kind now in question if it were made without reference to the Limitation Act. The reference is hardly at the stage where the R.L.A. can give a definite opinion.
